

Just the Facts: Republicans Create Huge Deficits

President Trump and Senate Republicans promised to reduce the national debt. Instead, it grew by $7.2 trillion in four years under President Trump.

$7.2 trillion in four years
About $22,000 in new federal debt for every person in America.

Republicans only think that deficits are a problem when Democratic presidents are in office. Yet, when Republican presidents are in office, they substantially increase the deficit.

President Clinton left office with a budget surplus of $236.2 billion.

President Obama inherited a historically high deficit at the time from President Bush and then cut it in half by the time he left office. Now President Biden has proposed a budget that reduces the deficit more in 2022 than any year in U.S. history.

Democrats know that good policies lower costs for Americans and responsibly build an economy that works for everyone.